

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE IN SPLENDID SESSION HERE ALL THIS WEEK

Teachers In Attendance From Every School
Augurs Well for the County's Educational Prospects.

The Ohio County Teachers' Institute convened Monday, July 7th and will be in session until Friday, July, 11th. Teachers from nearly every school in the county are present. Though no set program was in the past, yet the valuable talks arranged as has been the custom by the instructor and the suggestions from the teachers fill the hours with helpful interest. Singing is being led by Mr. Vernon McAfee.

G. Ivan Barnes, a supervisor of vocational agriculture, made a splendid talk Tuesday morning. The exercises were opened Monday morning by an address by Rev. Russell Walker and Tuesday morning with an address by Prof. W. S. Hill. Prof. Hill is secretary of the Institute.

SENSATIONAL CASE UP FOR TRIAL

The most sensational civil action case to be tried during the present term of Circuit Court is that of Oma L. Turner versus Mary Heaven, charging a libelation. The case is set for Monday and if all the witnesses who are summoned testify, it will last several days. Mr. H. P. Taylor, of Hartford and Judge Gordon, of Madisonville, are attorneys for the plaintiff while Mr. Ben Ringo, of Owensboro, and several Hartford lawyers represent the defendant.

FIVE HUNDRED PAR- TY FOR VISITORS

Mrs. V. C. Elgin entertained with one of the most enjoyable social events of the season at her home here, last Wednesday evening in honor of her visitors, Mrs. J. Ney Foster and Mrs. C. L. Bernard, of Elaine, Ark., and Miss Mildred Elgin, of Adairville, Ky. Five Hundred was the order of the evening and the following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Riley; Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore Keown; Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Murphree; Misses Lella Glenn, Winnie Simmerman, Myrtle Lashbrooks, Mattie Luke, Myrtle Smith, Norine Barnett, Tina Yeiser, Lella Mae and Anna Ruth Petrie, Mary and Margaret Marks, Messrs. McDowell Fogle, A. D. Kirk, Addison Howard, John Taylor, Goodell Wooten, James Glenn, Sidney Williams, and Chester Keown. Refreshments were served and quite a delightful evening was spent.

ENTERTAINS IN HONOR OF VISITORS

Mrs. John Taylor entertained last Thursday afternoon with a Rook party in honor of Mrs. Elgin's visitors, Mrs. J. Ney Foster and Mrs. C. L. Bernard, of Elaine, Ark. The house was most tastefully decorated with flowers and a delightful Salad and Ice course was served to the following guests: Mesdames, C. L. Bernard, J. Ney Foster, V. C. Elgin, A. C. Porter, Henderson Murphree; Misses Lella Glenn, Ruth Riley, Mary Marks, Florence Logan, Mattie Duke, Myrtle Smith, Winnie Simmerman, Letty Marks, Mary Laura Pendleton, Willie Lindley and Ruth Litchfield.

"SHARP, KEEN, EDGE"

An old friend of ours recently asked us if we could remember any part of this county that represented a good knife and after our answering in the negative, he proceeded to inform us that there is a section that is descriptive of one in the matter of names. Near Davidson there are three families living, or did not long since, whose names taken in rote fitly describes a knife of the carving variety. The Sharp family borders on the Keen neighborhood and they are neighbors to the Edge clan, and these together tell what every knife should have—Sharp, Keen, Edge.

CUPID, WHERE ART THOU?

June has passed and Cupid has been a slacker. The proverbial month of brides and roses has wafted away on its zephyrs and brought only thirteen brides before the altar of matrimony in Ohio County. Only thirteen! An unlucky number at that! Junetime, with its sighing winds and its riot of flowers, is the time of all times when the little god should speed his honeyed shafts. But few wedding bells have been ringing in this county and few hearts have been beating in ecstatic union, according to the record of the County Court Clerk. Only thirteen and the soldiers returning! The love god must have gone to sleep.

Miss Pauline Magan, of Dundee, is the guest of Miss Kount Rhoads.

ALL KINDS OF LIQUORS ARE BEING SOLD IN ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Practically every saloon in this resort is open today and dispensing liquid refreshments of all kinds. Whisky, brandy, gin and any other sort of liquor called for is served to patrons. The exceptions are the beach-front hotels, all of which closed their barrooms, with one exception. The wholesale houses also are closed.

Mayor Harry Bacharach said today the question of liquor selling in Atlantic City is entirely for the United States government to decide.

"IS THERE STILL A DIXIE?"

"Is there still a Dixie?" asks Life in its "Dixie Number." Yes, there is still a Dixie. A Dixie in the hearts of some of us older ones and in that realm of the spirit fancy may summon visions of the most beautiful of scenes, the loveliest of faces and days of cloudless blue! Dixie, the east to which those of us who stand on the rim of the fading day turn in devotion, while the shadows creep! Dixie, the glory land of the past, the golden bourn of memory's silent rambles, the hallowed solitude in whose cool depths the lost chords of life breathe their music into the soul! Dixie, love's shadowland, peopled with the unfettered spirits of the noble and the great, redolent of memories that do not die because they cluster about things immortal, tempted with the dream fabrics of a nation that drew from out Gods boundless deep and, after four years of romance, poetry and glory, turned again home! Dixie, the beautiful and glorious, the sweetest chapter of history, the noblest epic of the ages, the light of yesterday whose effulgence gilds the crest of time's swift onward tide! Dixie, the stainless mother of the nation, the indestructible kingdom of the twilight—Dixie, the incomparable south of our dreams! Yes, there still is a Dixie.—Houston Post.

FOUR AMERICANS ARE KILLED IN STRIKE

Valdivostok.—One American officer and three enlisted men were killed and two wounded near Suchan mines on June 22, when the Americans pursued the Bolsheviks who had uprisen and captured an officer and four enlisted men. The Americans sent a detachment of ten to demand the release of the men. The Americans were fired upon and a fight followed. The Bolsheviks were driven out, but carried the prisoners with them.

BOY IS DROWNED WHILE IN BATHING

Columbus, Ind.—Delbert Henderson, fourteen years old, son of Ambrose Henderson, a farmer near here was drowned last night while swimming in Haw Creek. The boy, who was seized with cramps, sank in six feet of water and never came up. Several men and other boys were swimming at the same place, but were unable to save young Henderson.

JUDGE WILSON HONORED

Former County Judge, John B. Wilson was recently appointed a member of the Executive Committee of the State Good Roads Association. This is quite an honor to Mr. Wilson and to the county as the position carries with it a good deal of responsibility. It is purely honorary and carries with it no remuneration.

CIRCUIT COURT SESSION

Judge Slack opened the regular term of Circuit Court for July Monday. It will continue two weeks with a crowded docket. Up to our press hour only a few cases had been disposed of and so we are waiting until next issue to give a list of decisions.

A ROCK OF AGES

There is a stone on the farm of Mr. Worth Lloyd, of near Barrett's Ferry, which has a peculiar history. Not because of its size or peculiarity of shape or because it represents any fossil of other days, but because of the hoary age it bears and its days of usefulness. Most stones are old; in fact the majority of them have been here longer than you and I can remember. And this stone is no older than the majority. But the fact that it was set aside for a useful purpose those many years ago, makes it interesting.

Sometime directly following the war of the Revolution, the Barrett family moved into this county and settled in the section that surrounds Barrett's Ferry. One of the Barrett's decided to start a tanning yard as all leather was home-tanned in those days. This was accomplished by a process which is now obsolete one part of which required the grinding of the leather under a heavy stone. Mr. Barrett hued this stone from one of the neighboring cliffs and for years it ground the leather that supplied the neighborhood. Then the tannery was discontinued, war and ruin came into the land, the old tanner languished and passed away, but the stone stands still as a memento of other days. For more than a century it has stood in the same place. The alternate sunshine and showers have played over it, the incessant raindrops have beat upon it, new faces have come to look upon it, yet it stands faithful and true to the past. Though nothing but a plain stone, taken from the cleft of the hills, yet it is an heirloom and relic of which to be proud.

FAIR THE FOURTH

The fair held at the fairgrounds on the Fourth of July was well attended and a pleasant day was spent by those who attended. An old fashioned barbecued dinner was served and the crowds coming from all sections of the county, mingled in that freedom which characterized the barbecues held in the antebellum days. To some these summer gatherings are a present pleasure, to others a fragment of memory. To those who lived back in the times before the Rebels and Yankees locked horns, and remember the community turnouts when the plantation bands rendered sweet stringed music and the darkeytown "chef" made the most delicious of burgoo, these barbecues are largely a reminder. It is always a pleasure to us to hear the oldtimers grow reminiscent and declare that things now are not as pleasant as they used to be, which the youngbloods of today will be sighing fifty years from now.

We took occasion to mention the above because it occurred to us just at this particular time, but concerning the fair, we will say, it was a success and Dr. Bean is to be congratulated.

LISTING BEGUN

Tax Commissioner Dillis E. Ward has opened his office, with an able crew of assistants, and has begun the listing of all the taxable property in the county. The law is that all the property must be listed for taxation before October and Mr. Ward intends to see that it is done. He asks all farmers and those living at a distance to come in at once and get their property listed as early as possible as there will be a rush toward the last of the time limit set and probably some will be subjected to penalties for failure to list. The roads will be worse toward the fall and those in the outlying sections of the county will find it difficult to reach Hartford. So get in as early as possible and give in your list. Mr. Ward's office is at the courthouse and he and his assistants will be always ready to wait on you.

W. H. SHANKS HERE

The Herald was favored with a call yesterday by Mr. W. H. Shanks of Stanford, Lincoln County, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. BINDS US TO SUPPORT FRANCE

America Goes Further Than England. "Guarantee"
Document Shows.

Paris, July 6.—"The guarantee pact," as the Parisian press calls the treaty between the United States and France, gives general satisfaction here. All newspapers, however, point out that, according to the text of the instrument America goes farther than England does in the treaty between France and that country.

By Article I. of the American-French treaty "the United States of America will be bound to come to the aid of France immediately," it is pointed out, while Article I. of the Anglo-French agreement only says: "England consents to come, etc."

SULPHUR SPRINGS

Farmers are still behind with their work and it is almost impossible to hire help. There is considerable labor running loose in the country that cannot be hired for love or money and it would be a good thing for the country if the vagrancy law was put into operation.

Mrs. A. B. Wedding, of Owensboro, is visiting her father, Mr. Virgil Renfrow, near Dundee. Mrs. Wedding has been in bad health for some time.

Last Saturday night two young men went to the farm of Otis Gabbert, near Marvin's chapel and took a young mare out of the pasture and a buggy out of the barn and went on a lark. Mr. and Mrs. Gabbert being at a singing convention at Marvin's chapel knew nothing of it until they returned home. The mare and buggy was found in a field near the farm of James Allen, the buggy was turned over and considerable wrecked and the mare was skinned up considerable and looked like she had been driven hard all night.

SMILES

"I'm troubled with a buzzing noise in my ears all the time."
"Have you any idea as to the cause?"
"Yes; my wife wants an auto."

The Haberdasher: One collar, 15¢?

The Customer: Yes, sir.
The Haberdasher: Will you have one just like you're wearing?
The Customer: No; I want a clean one.

He: Are you going to have the Blondes to dinner this season?
She: We certainly are, I shan't rest until I get even with them for the last one they gave us.

"So you sent a dollar for that advertised appliance to keep your gas bills down. What did they send you?"
"A paperweight."

The woman came up to the bank window the other day with a cashier's check for fifty dollars.

"What denomination?" asked the cashier in his pleasantest manner.

"Lutheran," replied the woman. "What are you?"

"The profiteers," said Representative Mudd of Maryland, "are catching it on all sides. When a profiteer attempts to chide some attacking congressman or senator he catches it as badly as Mrs. Merryweather."

"John," said Mrs. Merryweather, indignantly, "why did you tell Harriett Witherspoon that you married me because I was such a good cook?"

"Well," said Merryweather, "I had to have some good excuse, didn't I?"

"Our butcher's boy wants to improve his reading and asked me to suggest some suitable authors to him. Whom would you suggest?"
"I'd tell him to begin with Hogg, Lamb and Bacon."

"I understand you have a number of the old masters in your gallery."

"Gallery?" echoed Mr. Cumrox.
"Nonsense! I've got 'em right down in the front row."

CHECKERED CAREER OF A WANDERING $5 CHECK

A man made a bet with his wife—which was indiscreet.

The wife won—which was fore-ordained.

The man wrote the wife a check for $5 in payment of the bet—which was sad.

The wife cashed the check at the grocery, but forgot to endorse it—which was natural.

The grocer, despite the lack of endorsement, paid it to a packing house collector—which was careless.

The packing house collector turned it in—which was all in a day's work.

The packing house office man discovered the lack of endorsement—which was good work.

He handed it back to the driver and docked the driver's salary—which was system.

The driver placed the check in his white duck coat and sent it to the laundry—which was unwise.

The laundry mutilated the check beyond recognition—which was to be expected.

Which is why the driver asked the cashier to ask the grocer to ask the man's wife to ask her husband to write a duplicate check. Which is why the man feels like he is paying that bet twice.

The Surgeon—You're seasick, man; that's what ails you. What do you mean by calling it homesickness?

The Cob—Well, sir, my home is on the sea.

Edith—Is your engagement announced yet?

Alice—Well, I've told you, haven't I?

Hewitt—What is your wife doing?

Jewell—I don't know whether she is dressing for the opera or merely undressing.

"Does your wife go in for this uplift stuff?"
"Alas, no! She goes out for it—attends a meeting somewhere about every day in the week."

"Does your wife make a fuss over a late dinner?"

"Depends on whether it is due to my meeting a friend or her being to the matinee."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS
HOPE OF THE WORLD

George Creel in Article Declares Fward Step Taken Says Ratification Cer tain

There is no danger in prophecy when one deals with certainties. The League of Nations, as conceived, prepared and indorsed by the Paris conference, will be ratified by the Senate surely and overwhelmingly. When the vote is taken it is doubtful if the opposition will muster more than a corporal's guard of provincial statesmen.

The people of the United States are not the fools that politicians imagine. "Ghost dancing," such as has been indulged in by the Lodges, the Borahs, the Shermans and the Reeds, may interest and divert, but the average American is not yet ready to accept this Sioux excitement as argument. From first to last, the attack on the League of Nations has been lacking in intelligence even as it has lacked in honesty and fairness.

What was the appeal that went straight to the heart of America, making strongest for unity, service and sacrifice? It was the declaration of Woodrow Wilson that we were fighting a "war against war," that our purpose was less the redress of wrongs than the solemn and fixed determination to lift the black shadow of militarism from the face of the world. His proposal of a League of Nations, substituting conference and counsel for force and bloodshed, went home to the mind of the simplest, for its great virtue was its very simplicity.

Statesmen could not grasp it, or else rejected it as naive, because their trade had led them away from straight thinking. To the average American, however, there was nothing "visionary" about it, nothing at all impossible. At every turn in our national life the principle of the League of Nations is seen at work. The thirteen colonies first conceived it when they agreed to confederate, and the sovereign States indorsed the proposition, and gave it permanence, when they ratified the Constitution of the United States.

If Commonwealths, born in pride and jealousies, could evolve a machinery able to adjust bitter differences without resort to force, the American mind saw no reason why civilized nations may not agree to meet through their representatives in common counsel to consult for the common good. Especially when it is seen to-day, as never before, that the old way leads inevitably to war. The millions who have died since 1914, in battle or by starvation—the millions who are now taking up the burden of living in blindness, grief or desperate poverty—cry a command that the new way shall be attempted at least, for even if it is a blunder, it is a blunder forward.

It is this command that the Peace Conference has tried to answer. It is this command that the Republican leaders of the Senate, aided by a few parochial Democrats, are seeking to defy. Before the ink of the signatures was dry, thirty-seven Senators signed a resolution drawn by Henry Cabot Lodge, declaring that "the Constitutions of the League of Nations in the form now proposed should not be accepted by the United States." Not then, nor since, did any of them suggest a change or submit an amendment. Senator Lodge and Senator Knox, asked to put their objections in definite form, refused flatly. Senator Brandegee screamed that President Wilson was preparing to inflict "shame and disgrace" upon the United States, but steadfastly declined to discuss the covenant in definite terms. Not one Senator, not one paper, opened to the League of Nations, has put forward a single constructive suggestion, confining themselves to blanket denunciation of President Wilson, his policies and his methods. Mr. Taft and Mr. Root, championing the league, both contributed amendments that were given instant heed, but the senatorial leaders of their party have had nothing to offer but a doctrine of despair.

A world is trying to remake itself; shattered nations grope in agony for the light; crushed peoples are searching for firm ground on which to rebuild their lives, and stricken humanity begs for some protection against the horrors of war, but the great majority of the Senate of the United States can think only in terms of 1920 and can see in the League of Nations only the credit that will accrue a democratic President in event of its adoption.

dent in event of its adoption. ishes a deal of bitter amusement, for every attack made upon the League of Nations to-day had its parallel in the attacks made upon the Constitution of the United States when it was up for adoption. Read the politicians of that day and it is as though Lodge and Borah and Sherman were speaking. The proposed Constitution was "top vague," it destroyed the "sovereignty of the individual States," it was an evil measure that entailed "slavery" upon the living and placed all posterity in bondage; lovers of liberty were called upon to fight the "infamy," and "ruin and disaster" were prophesied if the evil document became the law of the land.

No one, not even its most ardent advocates, claims that the league covenant is perfect or that it approaches perfection. What can be claimed for it, however, is this: It is a start, and a start in the right direction. Disentangled from its legalistic verbiage, this is what the League of Nations proposes:

First.—Limitation of armaments.
Second.—Abolition of secret treaties.
Third.—Complete process of conference, inquiry, arbitration and settlement.
Fourth.—Guarantees of political independence and territorial integrity.

Thirty-two nations, by signing the covenant, agreed to these four fundamentals, a proceeding in itself that marks the longest forward step ever made by the peoples of the world. Thirty-two nations formally admitting the stupidity of war, solemnly pledging themselves to end competition in armies and navies, sacredly agreeing to open treaties and binding themselves to submit the causes of war to investigation and adjustment before drawing the sword!

What is the machinery devised to carry these proposals into effect? The Assembly of the Nations is made up of three representatives of each Power, each nation, however, having only one vote. Above the assembly is a council of nine in which America, England, France, Italy and Japan are permanently represented, the assembly electing the other four members. Aside from matters of routine procedure, decisive action by the council requires unanimous vote. This provision is the answer to prejudices by declaring that "the those critics who appeal to base black races" will control. Neither America nor any other nation can be overridden by a majority.

After-Effects Made Operation's Result. Questionable—Trutona Scores Victory

Louisville, Ky., July, 8.—Valuable words of advice founded upon actual experience, are embodied in the convincing testimonial of Mr. W. A. Jenkins, well known Louisville woman residing at 3121 West Broadway, in which she pays Trutona a glowing tribute.

"A serious operation, performed ten years ago, left me in a very nervous state," Mrs. Jenkins said. "Stomach disorders had become an additional trouble. Intestinal catarrh caused me to be constipated continually. I was always taking a laxative. I frequently experienced severe pains in my back, too. Dizzy spells often attacked me. My nerves were so unstrung that I never got a good night's rest."

"I advise all of my friends and others, suffering as I did, to try my nerves are much steadier and I'm really able to sleep well at night again. My kidneys are in better shape, too, as the pains in my back have ceased to bother me. And the constipation—well, it is entirely gone. Because of this relief I'm glad to recommend Trutona."

Trutona is now being introduced and explained in Hartford, Ky., at the Ohio County Drug Co., Incorporated. Advertisement.

If we had got woman suffrage first the suffragettes would have sung from ocean to ocean that the women voted the country dry.

The glorious old fourth of July was made more glorious this time because of two events—the surrender of the Hun and the death of Barleycorn.

The County Clerk in Jeffersonville, Indiana, issued over nine hundred marriages licenses during June. We know of a few preachers and a County Judge who wish Ohio
County would do the same.

The changing of the courthouse
lavatory to the basement thus creating a new and useful room upstairs is a commendable idea. This room affords a jury room or place where those waiting their turn as witnesses may find a resting place.

We are sorry our paper put up such a ragged appearance last week.
Our machine broke down on press day so we could scarcely get out the paper and could make no corrections, and our operator was ill also. It never rains but what it pours, 'tis said.

Marse Henry says the League is a snare set by England to trap the rest of the world and cannot be successful. If we mistake not, it was Marse Henry who believed the Southern Confederacy would be successful, and prophesied for the last fifty years that prohibition would never come.

We are to have another twenty-cent road election in this county at a time when the good road fever is at high tide. Probably it will carry this time, as it lost by only a few hundred before. At any rate it will not be so expensive to hold an election at the regular primary as it is a special election.

The Republicans don't know which way to knock. They cannot be for the League of Nations as a party because that would be too high an honor for Wilson and would rile their reactionaries;
they cannot be against it as a party
because that would alienate Taft, Root and a large body of leading Republicans. They cannot remain silent, because their ringleader, Borah, says if the Republican platform is silent on the League question, he will spit on it.

Just five years to a day from the time that Prinzip cast the fatal bomb that set in motion the war machine of Germany and made the world a wreck of carnage, peace was signed at Versailles. In the chamber of the deputies where the history of France is enshrined with many a memento, where the Iron Chancellor of Prussia crushed the Republic beneath his hand forty years ago, Germany the vanquished
the conquered, cringing and crying for mercy, wrote the signature that fixed her doom as a world power.
And France, gloating and triumphant,
watched the proceedings
with a leer of scorn. This is Germany's first defeat, France's first triumph over a Teutonic power.
She could never have done it without the aid of two other Teutonic powers—England and America.

Some are alarmed at the friction which occurred between the Americans and French at Brest. It should not be alarming; it is a natural consequence. In fact, the American public, fed up on the sentimentalism of ages, imagined
the French to be a nation of angels, who would fall upon the Americans' necks with welcoming gratitude. Instead the American soldiers were disgusted with them because of their low morality and lack of appreciation. They fell upon the Yanks' pocketbooks and held them up in every conceivable way. A military writer says the French officers demanded a salute from every American soldier but refused to salute an American shavetail unless he had been decorated with their croix de guerre.

They seemed to maintain an air of superiority and look upon the American aid as something they were due and the Yankees were late in delivering. In fact France has always seemed to consider herself our benefactor and that she should have a perpetual lease on us because of La Fayette, who came over to clear a grudge against England. Americans are not going to be bullied by any nation—even the much flattered French.

The Life Magazine has recently issued a "Dixie" number, devoted to the South. Most persons consider Dixieland as the section of country stretching across the southeastern part of our country, bounded on the north by the thirty-second parallel and on the south by the Mexican Gulf. But the real Dixie is co-existent with all nations;
like Utopia and the Land of the Leal, it is a part of the dream-fancy that gilds the softer hours of a tired and weary world. To look upon the sandy stretches of the central south or to even dream amidst the cottonfields white beneath the moon, is not to know Dixie. But to sit in the quiet of twilight and wander away into a shadowland where the roses bloom perennial and the magnolias glow;
where all faces are fair and all hearts true; to lose yourself in retrospection and see those scenes incarnate before you which only dreaming fancy is permitted to know—that is to know Dixie. It is not dead; it did not pass when the Stars and Bars were folded at Appamatox; it will live as long as hearts pine for the ideal and souls look upward through a mist of tears toward fairer and brighter worlds.

NATURE'S MIRROR

When a woman is well and there's a sparkle in her eyes, a rose tint in her cheeks,

and she has rich red blood. There's elasticity in every move-

spring in her step. Love

comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

Such a change in feelings and looks!

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce.
Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Pres-

CHAPTER XVII

THE RESULT OF A RESOLVE

Upon his arrival in Chicago Merlin arranged for indefinite lodging in a small but decorous boarding house. Then he again went over his manuscript, noticing every minor detail which might in any way prove a detriment to the story and dwelling on every point which might enhance its chances of success. He had only read it once before since it had been typed and now he was even more proud of his work than before. Its purity and innocence struck him; though his characters were true to life, yet the grosser elements were to some extent omitted and the ideal glorified. He was proudly conscious that he had produced a work more meritorious than he had dreamed.

The next day he started out to find a publisher. As he had believed before that it would be a comparatively easy task to find a position, so now he expected to find a publisher without the least difficulty. There was a great deal of difference between finding a position and a publisher, he thought. Had he not received a circular from a literary agency stating that publishers were literally tumbling over each other to discover new talent? Were they not ever ready to push the amateur to the front, sparing neither time nor expense, if he would only promise them the future productions of his pen? Merlin confidently believed these things and with as much assurance as he had had before he went forth. But he was destined to be as completely disillusioned as he had been the previous time.

He first appeared the plant of the R. S. Goldy Co., and glanced admiringly at the big gilded sign over the door. This must be a representative firm, he decided, else they could not afford this pretentious building. When he entered the clerks greeted him cordially, thinking him to be a customer come to purchase a new supply of their books; but when he stated his business the office thermometer dropped to the vicinity of zero and everything took on a frigid atmosphere. The manager very curtly told him they were not a concern organized for the purpose of boosting would-be authors and would consider it a favor if he would not molest them again. Merlin, who had learned a great deal about business men and their gruff ways, took this very complacently and walked laughing from the office.

But he was surprised when the next one he tried to interview turned him down, and the next, until he had been refused by the fourth and had a dark outlook for the fifth. Each of these publishers had absolutely refused to read his manuscript, claiming they were too busy, and Merlin was beginning to believe that the publishing business was quite as great a fake as he had decided the journalistic profession sometime since. In fact, he was beginning to lose faith in the whole literary game. The fawning devotion of the public to those who had "arrived" in spite of opposition and their determination to keep the amateur from "arriving" was a subject that awoke his disgust.

Then he tackled the fifth. The office was in a crowded basement with dingy windows and unpainted floors and Merlin's heart sank within him for he felt sure of failure. A man at beside a paper-littered desk; books were piled high in the corners and stacked on a small table in the center; pamphlets and leaflets were scattered about over the room. The proprietor of the plant turned and greeted Merlin with a smile.

"Something I can do for you?" he asked.

"Yes," answered the literary aspirant; "Yes, I am a young writer. I have just written a book which I believe will be a success when published. That is why I have come to you today. You see, my work has never been criticized by one who understands literature from the publishers' standpoint. I would like for you to give this manuscript a literary reading, if you can spare the time, and if it is found acceptable, I should like to arrange with you to issue it in book form."

"Alright, sir!" responded the publisher cheerily; "I will be more than glad to glance over your manuscript. As we are a little short of books for the summer issue, if I find this story meritorious, I would be glad to negotiate with you for its publication. You may return tomorrow and I will let you know the result of my reading."

Merlin thanked him and hastened from the office. On the way to his boarding house he felt strangely exultant over his prospects. Perhaps the world was not so bad after all. There might be a few who would aid a fellow who was struggling for place and prominence.

The next morning he hurried to the office and was welcomed by the smiling proprietor.

"Well, Mr. Mitchell," he began, when Merlin had seated himself, "I found your story to be superb—tender and beautiful, a virtual masterpiece! It is the grandest product I have ever read, coming from any pen!"

"Thank you, sir," was all he could say. Merlin flushed with pride.

"And I am very glad I had the opportunity to read this manuscript," continued the publisher, "It will make a success, a glorious success, and win a world-wide reputation for you."

"And how about your publishing it?" queried the anxious author.

"I was just coming to that. Of course your book will be a grand success. There is absolutely no doubt about that. But you will readily understand that no publishing house—especially one with the prestige and standing that we have—would think of bringing out the first book of an unknown author—no matter how promising his work might be—entirely at their own expense. Of course the cost of the first edition is always great, but as we assume all advertising expense and exploitation of said book, the expense to the author would be quite small. Now in your case, as I am so much impressed with your work, I have arranged even more liberal terms. If you will pay us only one thousand dollars and sign a contract that we are to be permitted to take the balance of the expense from the first accrued royalties from the sale of the book, we will be glad to bring it out for you."

Merlin thought of his savings and was sorely tempted to accept it. "And what guarantee have I thought it will not be a total loss to me?" he asked.

"You have this: the book has every requirement of a best-seller, and a best seller means anywhere from twenty thousand to an hundred thousand dollars for the author. We are going to put up more money than you; if we are not afraid of losing on you, you should not be afraid of losing on yourself. What do you say?"

"Alright, get your contract, I'll sign," he agreed. The publisher produced the contract, filled it out, they both affixed their signatures and the publication of the book was assured.

Merlin went to his boarding house in a highly exultant mood. At last he was fairly well launched upon the capricious sea of literary endeavor and headed toward that goal that had been his since childhood. By the outlay of a few hundred dollars he had accomplished what other men had despaired of—he had laid the cornerstone of his success. And the royalty! Before meeting with the publisher he had given very little thought to the practical and financial side of his writing. He had considered it the ideal profession in which he might engage his idle hours and indulge his higher faculties. But now the prospect of independence, even opulence, stood before him like a mirage that was prone to lead him astray from the enchanted aisles of his fancy into sordid and materialistic considerations. More and more the significance of a great success dawned upon him. The conqueror, the strong one, who surmounted obstacles and vanquished his adversaries always accomplished a threefold purpose: He was a benefactor to humanity, benefited himself and proved more strongly his spiritual devotion. There are no true battles except those fought by the spirit. The war of the body is but a puny testing of the animal strength and is in no way suggestive of the power of the inner man. It is only in the triumph of the spirit over the flesh that a noble victory is won.

The days went by. For sometime he hesitated to seek any sort of employment, depending upon the immediate success of his forthcoming book and paying his expenses from the little capital that was left him after his expenditures. Finally, however, he saw that his meager capital was fast diminishing and as his chances of securing royalties were still remote, he set about to find something to do. He tried to persuade the publisher to let him draw on his royalties but this did not work and he searched in vain for work.

So he went to a still cheaper boarding place. The hostess was cold and businesslike, yet he liked the place. So he paid her his last dollar for board, which put him safe until September, and lived afterward on hope. Almost daily he tramped over the city in search of work but none could be found; he advertised in the papers for a position as bookkeeper but could get no response; and when he was all but ready to give up all hope and go to the country, his book came out.

STATE OF KENTUCKY, OHIO COUNTY FISCAL COURT

JUNE 26th, 1919

It appearing that Ohio County has not sufficient amount of money for road purposes and that the present system of road working by road hands is inadequate and unsuitable for the working and up keep of the roads of Ohio County, and having been called upon by the State Commissioner of public Roads of Kentucky, as well as by a large number of citizens of Ohio County by petition for a better and more adequate system of the working and upkeep of the country roads of Ohio County, and being desirous of meeting this demand in the best and most practicable way, and it further appearing that a special election upon the question of a 20c road tax may be held at a primary election at but very small expense in addition to the expense otherwise required, and made necessary by holding of a primary election for its general purposes, it is now, on motion of Esq. B. F. Rice ordered and adjudged by the court that a special election be held throughout Ohio County and in each and all the precincts therein on August 2, 1919, for the purpose of submitting the question of voting a tax of 20c on the $100.00 on all property subject by law to local taxation for the improvement or construction of the public roads and bridges of the county, either, or both. Said amount of tax shall be 20c on the hundred dollars each year for a period of five years and no amount of money in excess of the amount that can be raised by the levy in any one year shall be expended in that year, and all indebtedness created in any one year for such road and bridge purposes shall be paid out of the fund raised in that year. Said tax to be an ad valorem tax to be levied each year and collected by the sheriff at the same time and in the same manner and by the same processes that he collects other taxes and for the collection of the tax levied hereunder the sheriff shall be entitled to and allowed a commission of 1 per cent of the amount so collected and no more, as provided in section 4307B-4 of Kentucky Statutes Vol. 3.

The question of voting said tax of 20c ad valorem on the hundred dollars worth of property subject by law to local taxation, shall be submitted to the voters in the following language and not otherwise:

"Are you for a property tax of twenty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of property in the county, to be levied each year for five years, for the purpose of improving or constructing, either or both, the roads, and bridges of the county?"

S. A. Bratcher, sheriff of Ohio County, Ky., is hereby appointed, ordered and directed to hold said election, and he shall cause a poll to be opened in each and all of the precincts throughout Ohio County, on the above named date as the law in such cases directs and he will first advertise said election by having a certified copy of this order published in a weekly newspaper published and having the largest circulation in Ohio County, for at least thirty days next before the date of said election, and W. C. Blankenship, Clerk of this court, is ordered and directed to immediately furnish the sheriff aforesaid a certified copy of this order for the purpose of said advertising.

Said sheriff and said clerk are further ordered and directed to do and to perform each and everything required under the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in advertising and conducting said election, and in preparing and preserving the ballots and canvassing and certifying the vote and said election is directed to be held in all respects as required by law governing such elections, and under the general election laws of this commonwealth now in force which relate and apply to such elections.

It is resolved and so ordered that the money derived from the taxes so levied and collected shall be used, expended and applied in each and several of the respective magisterial districts of the county where said taxes are so levied and collected, so that each of said districts shall receive all and in full the taxes so levied and collected therein. Persons carefully selected for their competency and put under bond for the fair and faithful performance of their duties will be employed in each district to see after the work therein, and said taxes shall be for the exclusive working and upkeep of the public roads and the bridges and culverts thereon of said respective districts, and shall be so apportioned, used, and applied as to change the system of road working in Ohio County from the road hand system now in existence to a system of working said roads by the use of proper and improved, adequate and sufficient road machinery, by teams, graders, scrapers, ditchers, drags, picks, drills, dynamite, and other road appliances, adaptable and suitable for both hills and lowlands, so that each and all sections of road whether hill or lowland shall have the attention necessary and suitable for its proper upkeep and convenient use for the several communities affected and for the general traveling public. But the purchase of such machinery, implements and tools shall be made in no event out of the funds derived from the 20c road tax, but exclusively from the funds derived from taxes regularly levied and collected each year as already provided by law, and the men now subject to duties as road hands throughout the county shall be released from such duty.

The amount of said tax shall not exceed the said rate of 20c on the hundred dollars as aforesaid, nor be levied or collected for a longer period than five years. As it is not within our power to levy or have collected any poll tax additional to that already levied and collected, nor to submit the question of voting an additional poll tax, hence the election ordered is for the purpose of levying and collecting a tax on property only. Ayes and Nays being called for resulted as follows: B. F. Rice, Yes; Q. B. Brown, Yes; W. S. Dean, Yes; W. C. Daugherty, Yes; B. C. Rhoads, Yes; G. W. Rowe, No; Sam L. Stevens, Absent; Ed Shown, Yes. Whereupon the motion was declared carried and so ordered.

FARMERS' TAXES

Farmers, who is it that has been raising your taxes on your land in the past three years?

You know that the State put the raise on your county in spite of all your county officials could do.

Judge Carroll, if elected will take away the power of the State Tax Commission to touch land at all, and will leave that to your local people.

This will stop the raises on your land. He says let every county fix its own land values and the state keep out of land assessments. There will be no chance to get this if Carroll is not nominated.

HE IS THE ONLY MAN RUNNING ON THIS PLATFORM.

Farmers, wake up and get busy your medicine. It is hard to make a race in the interest of the farmer because he will not take the interest he ought to in helping his man.

The railroads and mountain capitalists are not for Carroll. It is hard to run for the farmer because the capitalists will fight a man and the farmer will let some local man

FOR YOURSELF. YOU ARE PAYING TOO MUCH TAXES IN PROPORTION TO OTHER PEOPLE.

VOTE FOR JOHN D. CARROLL

and once more give us an old time Democrat Governor elected by the people for the people instead of the capitalists and favor few. This is short. Get busy NOW.

PEACE AND LEAGUE OF NATIONS TERMS

have been signed by Germany and practically all the leading nations of the world. The soldiers of all warring nations must turn from war to the peaceful pursuits of life. These millions of soldiers must have clothes, civilian clothes and working clothes. The millions of the civilian population of France, England, Russia, Italy, Belgium, South America, Germany, and all other countries must be clothed and fed. The supply of all these countries is very limited, and many of the warring nations have practically nothing. Every one of them is looking to the United States for the things they haven't. Many of them have buyers in this country, with millions of dollars to spend for our merchandise, and the rest will be here as soon as they can establish satisfactory credit in this country. All of these buyers scrambling for merchandise and no surplus stock on hand, you can readily see that prices are bound to go skyward on everything that's to wear. One or two years of very high prices seems evident.

The savings on our merchandise at today's regular prices, will be enormous.
